ALF A DOZEN PEOPLE BADLY INJURED

Infernal Machines Placed Over the Doors So as to Explode When the Doors Were Opened—No Arrests Have Been Made.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—The city of Paris has been startled by another bomb explosion, which, following so closely upon the outrage at the Hotel Terminus, has caused intense excitement. The excitement is so great, indeed, that it is difficult to obtain a correct version of the facts in the case.

From careful inquiry at police headquarters it seems, however, that a man of suspicious appearance recently hired a furnished room in a small tenement or hotel of modest description situated at 69 Rue St. Jacques. So far as can be ascertained the suspicious looking tenant disappeared on or about Monday, and as he did not return last night the proprietor of the hotel, Mme. Calabresi, knocked at the door and finally threatened to break open the door unless it was opened. Mme. Calabresi delayed carrying out her intention of entering the apartment until this morning, when she again tried to open the door, this time using force. While engaged in the task the lady became aware that something had caught in the top of the door, and upon closer inspection she saw what was to all appearances a bomb or infernal machine.

She ran away from the door in alarm and called her husband, who, after making an inspection of the supposed bomb, called a policeman, who promptly but unwisely put his shoulder to the door and burst it open.

This caused the bomb, shaped like a sardine box of the largest size, to fall upon the floor, where it exploded, inflicting terrible injuries upon Mme. Calabresi, who was wounded in the abdomen, and slightly wounding her husband. The explosion also caused the death of a young man, M. Israel, a commission agent who had been attracted to the scene by the arrival of the policeman, and also inflicting injuries upon Mme. Calabresi's two children, who were also wounded severely by a bullet from the bomb, which passed almost through the body of one of the policeman recovered from the shock which he had sustained by the explosion he sent for assistance, and Mme. Calabresi, her husband and the two children were slightly wounded were taken to the Hotel Dieu, the famous hospital of Paris.

The police are maintaining great secrecy. The house where the explosion took place is in their hands, and is being closely guarded during the investigation. According to one theory the bomb was placed where it was found by an anarchist leader, who had a personal grudge against her and Mme. Calabresi, and who was aware that they would force open this door so soon as they became convinced that he had disappeared from the premises. The explosion caused much damage in the tenement window, crushing down the plastering and doing other injury to the interior.

SECOND IN A DAY.

This afternoon there was a renewal of the excitement when it became known that another bomb had been found. This time there was no explosion. The second bomb was found in the Hotel de l'Esperance, on the Rue du Faubourg, St. Martin. It was found at 11:30 a. m. and was in a slipper and under the one that exploded earlier in the day on the Rue St. Jacques. The bomb of the Hotel de l'Esperance was found in a manner similar to that which caused the discovery and explosion of the first one this morning. In the later case, however, the bomb did not explode, and upon being found it was taken to the municipal laboratory, where it will be examined.

France and Russia at Variance on the Matter of French Corvettes. BELLEVILLE, Feb. 20.—The French and Russian governments have been exchanging letters on the subject of the French corvettes. According to the newspaper the Russian note said that while not claiming the right to interfere in the international affairs of another state and recognizing the fact that France is perfectly loyal in treating all countries alike, Russia must protect her own interests, and if the corvettes damage the Russian export trade she will reserve the right to terminate the Franco-Russian treaty of commerce.

The French note sent in reply to the Russian communication referred to the subsidies that while France must respond to the popular feeling in favor of an increase of the duties on corn, she would endeavor to limit the increase to a maximum of 100,000 francs. The note also acknowledges the receipt of the French reply, but remarks that Russia adheres to her own view.

HIS OPENING FIRE ON THE HOUSE OF LORDS

Fifteen Minute Speech by the Grand Old Man on the Motion to Discharge the Order of the Employers Liability Bill.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—There was a notable gathering in the House of Commons today when Mr. Gladstone made a speech in support of his motion to make an attack upon the House of Lords in connection with its recent rejection or mutilation of popular government bills. Many peers were present in the galleries.

Mr. Gladstone, carefully dressed and with a flower in his buttonhole, entered during "question time" and was loudly cheered, not only by his admirers but by many of the opponents of the Grand Old Man.

After the questions had been disposed of Mr. Gladstone, amidst loud and enthusiastic cheers, moved the discharge of order of the employers liability bill. The speech of Mr. Gladstone in making this motion only lasted fifteen minutes. The premier said during the course of his remarks that he was convinced that a large majority of the working classes were opposed to the House of Lords' amendments and that the bill had no option but to withdraw the bill.

The radicals who had been eagerly expected to make an attack upon the House of Lords showed no disposition to do so. The speech progressed. The premier, in his mild, easy tones, argued simply against the House of Lords and the conservatives, and from all evidence presented, he thought the working people and friendly societies objected to the House of Lords provisions.

Mr. Gladstone, the conservative leader, who was also hotly cheered on all sides, then arose. He defended the House of Lords amendments, claiming the working people favored the bill. He said, they represented an industrial constituency, and that he had not received a single objection to the amendments. He said the unionists and the conservatives, according to him, were sent to the House of Commons by the working people, upon whose support the bill was dependent.

Finally, Mr. Gladstone's motion and amid loud laughter the bill was withdrawn. The House resumed its ordinary business. The receiver of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company has made application to the court for authority to receive a portion of the trust's floating debt.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A correspondence describing the march of the expedition under Colonel Ellis against the Sofas in Sierra Leone, and the engagement between the French and British troops near Warina, gives horrible details of Sofa slave raids. In some cases entire towns have been wiped out and their inhabitants butchered and scattered. The march of the expedition, which has been going on for several months, is now a scene of desolation. All the houses are in ashes and the headless and mutilated bodies of the dead and children are lying heaped amid the ruins. The stench arising from these mounds of decaying flesh is horrible.

Word White Inserted in the Constitution Without Discussion—Some New Denominations of the Peculiar Cycling Term Amateur.

LOUISVILLE, Feb. 20.—The second day's session of the League of American Wheelmen was called to order at 10:40 this morning by President J. L. Drinn.

Mr. Mot of Maryland offered a resolution complimenting the officers for their efficient work.

Colonel William Watts of Kansas asked the privilege of speaking on the amendment regarding the insertion of the word white. While he felt confident there would be a large increase in membership if the amendment were adopted, Mr. Watts read a letter signed by twenty-five members of the Union Cycle club, a colored organization, in which they urged the insertion of the word white. After some discussion it was decided to defer the amendment until the next meeting.

The question of the annual summer meet of the League of American Wheelmen was next taken up. After a long discussion a vote was taken by ballot. The vote resulted, 93 in favor of Denver and 79 for Asbury Park. The selection of Denver was then made unanimous on a motion of Mr. Holmes.

On motion of Mr. Wilson $1,500 was appropriated for the expenses of the racing season.

A resolution offered by Mr. Potter of New York to continue the League of American Wheelmen's membership in the International Cyclists' Union was adopted.

The resolution was then taken up and a ballot taken without discussion. The vote resulted, 127 for the amendment to 54 against it.

The afternoon session convened at 2:30. President Luscomb's first official act was the reappointment of Howard E. Raymond as secretary of the board of directors.

The most important of these amendments was the one relating to class A defining an amateur. An additional provision labeled "B" was adopted, as follows: "An amateur of class A may not compete outside of his own state, or a greater than 100 miles from his legal residence, except by special permission of the member of the racing board in charge of his district."

Wherever permission is granted to an amateur of class A to compete at a distance from his legal residence greater than allowed by the rules, the member of the racing board shall require an itemized statement of expenses, with receipts and vouchers, to be filed with the chairman at once that said permission has been granted.

These amendments, with the restrictions already in force, mean that the members of the racing board must regard more closely the bounds beyond which an amateur may not go without being considered a professional. After the consideration of matters of importance the assembly's time was taken up with the discussion of the matter of an official paper for the league, and with the adoption of a decision an adjournment for supper was taken.

In the evening President Luscomb declined a salary of $3,000 a year and the convention adjourned.
